The picture of the FT100 on the home page was just what I was looking for when I started to write my CAT100 program. I couldn't find any good 'straight on' shots of the radio, so I settled on using the drawing that is in the operators manual.

Is it a pretty good size picture with high resolution? Maybe for the next version of CAT100 I could change the graphics to a picture like this.

We're testing CAT100 'as we speak' to see if I was successful in eliminating the runtime errors. I should know by tomorrow if I was successful.

Good luck on your FT100Software list.

5. Ft100 CAT commands and radio response

Yahoo group: FT100SOFTWARE
Date: 2001-11-05 08:05:38 UTC
From: olaf.devik@hydro.com
Topic: 5 Message: 5

I am one of the many that have tried to make some sensible communication with the radio. After a lot of trial and error I have a piece of working software. So that I can get frq readout, change from RX to TX, set modes and filters. Further I can read out most of the information contained in the meter and flag bytes, however I am not fully completed with the software.

In the process I discovered that the radio commands seems to follow what is stated in the manual, however certain commands are scarcely documented in the manual. Eg the status command seems to work with the command 00 00 00 02 10, but the use of 02 seems undocumented. I have not tried alternative opcodes sofar.

The same thing applies to the status bytes returned. I get 32 bytes of status returned, while the manual states 16 bytes, however the last 16 bytes seems to be unchanged regardless of radio status.

The meter status returns 9 bytes and not 8 as stated in the manual and the flag status returns 5 bytes instead of 7 as stated in the manual (of the 5 bytes only bytes 0, 1 and 2 has info, bytes 3 and 4 seems unchanged regardless of radio status).

We should try to collect a table of the proper commands and actual radio response so that we can avoid the guesswork now attached to the interpretation of the manual.

Any information is welcomed.

Hello to the list.

Does anyone know how to control the squelch via command string?

I have already written a program for my remote base, but need to adjust squelch based on varied levels of noise floor one each band, mode, etc.

Thanks

Carl,

Unfortunately, the FT100's firmware does not provide for squelch control via the cat port. In my CAT100 program, I had to run the receive audio from the FT100 into the sound card's line-in port and then use the voltage produced in the FT100 to trigger a mute/unmute of the sound card's output.

Hi Federco,

There are four or five software packages around to control the FT-100D, but unfortunately, the memories are not programmable through the CAT interface. Just one of those features they could not fit into the small package and the purchase price.

Hi Federico,

Apparently Yaesu did not add the programmable memory option to keep the radio price down. Another good control progam is TRX Manager. It costs $69 US, well worth the price, and works with a variety of radios. Web site is www.trx-manager.com

Well , I would be interested in helping debug/write , but I am not a programmer , but an avid linux user who wants to be a amateur programmer some day ;^) , so I would love to learn in the process .

Seriously though , I have an ft100d and a ft847 , which I would like to control both of from my linux boxes :^)

Let me know how I can help and if you would like to email me feel free !

I hapen to be a programmer, but the last time I wrote anything serious in C was well over 12 years ago.

That being said, I have a partially working command line program that can do a few basic things so far (set frequency & op mode, and set pl tones). Hopefully I will be able to spend a bit of time on it over the next week and get something better working.

My plan is to get a command line program working, then split out the actual functions that control the rig into a seperate module or a library. Once that is done, I will have a working lib, and a commanf line interface to it. After that, time for a goo interface for X, probably using gtk, although, I might consider using the Borland Open Edition of Kylix.

As soon as I get a few more features in, and a bunch of bugs worked out, I will get back to you for testing.

Hmmm.... not much activity on the list, I better stir it up a bit.

Ft100 version 0.0.7 has been released under the GPL (free for those who don't know) for both linux & (due to unpopular demand) windows.

Currently there is a gui for linux, but none for windows. The windows version is command line only. If there is anyone out there that is willing to write a simple gui front end for windows, please contact me off list.

There will be a new gui front end for linux released sometime in the next few days.

See http://www.qsl.net/kc2ivl/ for more details

Why do you receive SPAM on a Yahoo!group?

Easy. The list is set so that anyone can join. "Robots" join lists and then post to them.

The owner can set the list to "moderated entry"... and a file is generated to be sent to pending members...and everyone who tries to join is sent an email requesting a valid callsign or a statement on their interest.

Often, the user ID IS a callsign so the choice to allow entry is obvious. The owner and moderator get an email from Yahoo! asking if the person can join. Click "reply" and they're in. Otherwise the owner/moderator waits for the email from the member giving the credentials, and goes to the "pending member" page to allow entry.

Robots do not read the mail so they don't "get" what to do. The owner cleans out any pending members over a period of time who haven't responded.

Commander provides basic transceiver control, maintains 20 memories, permits users to define their own command sequences, and displays settings for frequency dependent devices like antenna tuners and amplifiers.

Commander also provides transceiver control services to other applications in the DXLab suite of free amateur radio software, including DXKeeper (logging), SpotCollector (DX spot aggregation and analysis), WinWarbler (multichannel PSK and RTTY), and PropView (propagation forecasting and monitoring).

Commander is free, and available via www.qsl.net/dxlab .

For those of you interested in PC rig control, the latest release of Commander (4.4.3) lets you switch between up to three connected radios with a single mouse click, or automatically by assigning a radio to each amateur band. Commander currently supports the following radios:

Elecraft: K2

Icom: all models using the CI-V bus

Kenwood: TS-440, TS-450, TS-570, TS-690, TS-711, TS-811, TS-850, TS-870, TS-940, TS-950, TS-2000

TenTec: all models using the CI-V bus

Yaesu: FT-100, FT-757, FT-767, FT-817, FT-840, FT-847, FT-857, FT-890, FT-897 FT-900, FT-920, FT-990, FT-1000D, FT-1000MP, MarkV

Commander, like all DXLab applications is completely free, and available via http://www.qsl.net/dxlab/.

Hoodia has been on the news everynight this week. everybody is talking about this revolutionary weight loss product! Hoodia is the newest weight loss sensation that is sweeping the diet pill industry Hoodia Gordonii is a succulent (similar to Aloe) plant found in desert regions of South Africa. Unlike most diet supplements, Hoodia gordonii is entirely natural - it is not a drug, and has no stimulant properties. Hoodia Gordonii mimics the effects of glucose on nerve cells in the hypothalamus of the brain, fooling the body into thinking that it is "satisfied" or "full" This helps curb appetite, and calorie intake in the diet is reduced "I have been taking DietMaxx for 1 month now and I am seeing the results already! I have lost 15 lbs and I have not been exercising. This product is incredible!" (More success stories http://www.mustardboat.com/a (http://www.mustardboat.com/a/)) as seen on 60 minutes! http://www.mustardboat.com/a (http://www.mustardboat.com/a/)

I am single, but I do date a lot and I believe many times the problem was due to anxiety and pressure to perform with someone new.
I bought Vjaggra online http://www.impartadistin.com and decided to give it a go.
WOW WOW WOW it kicked in after about 20-30 minutes and that was just perfect, as I knew where the evening was going.

I am a healthy 24 year old male, up to this point never had any problems sexually.
Well, after years of hard work, I got my dream girl - an insatiable crush since my teens.
Unfortunately, the pressure to perform became too much initially for me to bear and I found myself not rising to the occasion as I would have liked or as I have in the past.
On the advice of a friend, I bought Vjjagra online http://www.nitagisil.com and decided to give it a go.
And WOW, incredible. I felt like a little pressure in my face, but all that went to the wayside after I climaxed 4 times throughout the night. She even had her first orgasm ever through intercourse! My anxiety is a thing of the past and I am now back to my old self.
All I needed was Vjjagra to help me tell myself "you can do it." http://www.nitagisil.com affecting my relationship with my girl.

I got a sample pack of Vvjagra from http://www.monider.com, and let me say that this stuff is the bomb.
I took one before we watched a movie the other night, and then we had sex about three hours later. I haven't been that hard since I was a teenager.
She was so turned on by my erection. She immediately began sucking and licking my peniis. I could tell she loved it. Then she rode me hard and came many times. Then I rolled her over doggy style and gave her a few more orgasms before burying my load in her.
I am in heaven. Thank you Vvjagra. http://www.monider.com

This campaign is about Human beings, Democracy, UNHCR, Refugees, The Iraqis, Islam, Kurds, Human rights, Respect, Money, Donations, Angelina Jolie, Pavarotti, Giorgio Armani, Donors, Peace, History, Campaigns and about you if you care about these words.

Hi there,

I am SAM, an Iraqi refugee living in Lebanon at the moment; I have spent the last 10 years of my life as a refugee registered with the UNHCR in Beirut. The last 4 years, I have spent as an activist for peace and human rights (especially refugees and asylum seekers) on the Internet; I'm also books author and ebooks publisher. I have launched many campaigns to improve our situation as refugees in Lebanon and hopefully bring more understanding to our problems worldwide. I helped make many changes and improvements at the UNHCR office in Beirut; I used the Internet as the field for my activities (you can read more about that in my free ebook 'MY CAMPAIGNS'). All my ebooks are free and could be download from my sites.

This is my newest campaign, it's about the illegal and humiliating actions of the UNHCR, who using photos of refugees as banners and human-buttons to collect money. This is an abuse of the dignity and humanity of the refugees and must stop immediately and a clear public apology present by The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. My friends, I am talking about the pictures you can see here:
http://unhcrlebanon.10e.net/human-buttons.htm

Also you can read my new campaign 'Urgent, we need smile' here:
http://free.7host07.com/unhcrlebanon/email_me.htm

For more info about UNHCR and life of refugees you can read my free ebooks. I invite you as fellow humans and members of the world community to support my campaign by reading my article on my site and see the human-buttons. The campaign is to support and improve the UNHCR http://www.unhcr.org especially after the last scandals in the UN and UNHCR, just for example: http://www.mizzima.com/archives/news-in-2005/news-in-april/12-April05-22.htm

"We make demonstration and fast because the UNHCR office in Cairo did nothing for our problem..." http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/africa/4440730.stm

Together we will build better world.

You could reach me fast via this form: http://lebanon.comvision2000.com/email_me.htm and if you like to know more about me, you can google for my name 'osam altaee'.

he could have fine sport hunting them, or they could stop till they starved. Let them try to get to land and he would be ready. Soon he would set all the shoreland woods ablaze and wither every field and pasture. Just now he was enjoying the sport of town-baiting more than he had enjoyed anything for years. But there was still a company of archers that held their ground among the burning houses. Their captain was Bard,

In this way at last Mr. Baggins came to a place where the trees on either hand grew thinner. He could see the paler sky between them. The dark river opened suddenly wide, and there it was joined to the main water of the Forest River flowing down crawling back down to Gollums water. Perhaps if he followed him, Gollum might lead him to some way of escape without meaning to.

Curse it! curse it! curse it! hissed Gollum. Curse the Baggins!
Its gone! What has it got in its pocketses? Oh we guess, we guess, my precious. Hes found it, yes he must have. My birthday-present. Bilbo pricked up his ears. He was at last beginning to guess himself. H^ hurried a little, getting as close as he dared behind Gollum, who was still going quickly, not looking back, but turning his head from side to side, as Bilbo could see from the faint glimmer on the walls.
My birthday-present! Curse it! How did we lose it, my precious? Yes, thats it. When we came this way last, when we twisted that nassty young squeaker. Thats it. Curse it! It slipped from us, after all these ages and ages! Its gone, gollum.
Suddenly Gollum sat down and began to weep, a whistling and gurgling sound horrible to listen to. Bilbo halted and flattened himself against the tunnel-wall. After a while Gollum stopped weeping and began to talk.

broken reflections of clouds and of stars. Then the hurrying water of the Forest River swept all the company of casks and tubs away to the north bank, in which it had eaten out a wide bay. This had a shingly shore under hanging banks and was walled at the eastern end by a little jutting cape of hard rock. On the shallow shore most of the barrels ran aground, though a few went on to bump against the stony pier. There were people on the look-out on the banks. They quickly poled and pushed all the barrels together into the shallows, and when they had counted them they roped them together and left them till the morning. Poor dwarves! Bilbo was not so badly off now. He slipped from his barrel and waded ashore, and then sneaked along to some huts that he could see near the waters edge. He no longer thought twice about picking up a supper uninvited if he got the chance, he had been obliged to do it for so

Is this true? asked the Master. As a matter of fact he thought it far more likely than the return of the King under the Mountain, if any such person had ever existed.
It is true that we were wrongfully waylaid by the Elven-king and imprisoned without cause as we journeyed back to our own land, answered Thorin. But lock nor bar may hinder the homecoming spoken of old. Nor is this town in the Wood-elves realm. I speak to the Master of the town of the Men of the lake, not to the raft-men of the king.
Then the Master hesitated and looked from one to the other. The Elvenking was very powerful in those parts and the Master wished for no enmity with him, nor did he think much of old songs, giving his mind to.trade and tolls, to cargoes and gold, to which habit he owed his position. Others were of different mind, however, and quickly the matter was settled without him. The news had spread from the doors of the hall like fire through all the town. People were shouting inside the hall and outside it. The quays were thronged with hurrying feet. Some began to the elf-caves for ever. For even if he could have escaped through the upper gates at once, he had precious small chance of ever finding the dwarves again. He did not know the way by land to the place where the barrels were collected. He wondered what on earth would happen to them without him; for he had not had time to tell the dwarves all that he had learned, or what he had meant to do, once they were out of the wood.

There in the shadows on a large flat stone sat a tremendous goblin
with a huge head, and armed goblins were standing round him carrying the axes and the bent swords that they use. Now goblins are cruel, wicked,
and bad-hearted.
They make no beautiful things, but they make many clever ones.
They can tunnel and mine as well as any but the most skilled dwarves, when they take the trouble, though they are usually untidy and dirty.
Hammers, axes, swords, daggers, pickaxes, tongs, and also instruments of torture, they make very well, or get other people to make to their want of air and light. It is not unlikely that they invented some of the machines that have since troubled the world, especially the ingenious devices for killing large numbers of people at once, for wheels and engines and explosions always delighted them, and also not working with their own hands more than they could help; but in those days and the hobbit stumped off to the pantries. And just bring out the

Seems to know as much about the inside of my larders as I do myself! thought Mr. Baggins, who was feeling positively flummoxed, and was beginning to wonder whether a most wretched adventure had not come right into his house. By the time he had got all the bottles and dishes things piled up on big trays, he was getting very hot, and red in the face, and annoyed.

Confusticate and bebother these dwarves! he said aloud. Why dont they come and lend a hand? Lo and behold! there stood Balin and Dwalin
at the door of the kitchen, and Fili and Kili behind them, and before he could say knife they had whisked the trays and a couple of small tables
into the parlour and set out everything afresh.
Gandalf sat at the head of the party with the thirteen, dwarves all round: and Bilbo sat on a stool at the fireside, nibbling at a

The other dwarves quite agreed when they got the message. They all thought their own shares in the treasure (which they quite regarded as theirs, in spite of their plight and the still unconquered dragon) would suffer seriously if the Wood-elves claimed part of it, and they all trusted Bilbo. Just what Gandalf had said would happen, you see. Perhaps that war part of his reason for going off and leaving them.

But help came swiftly; for Bard at once had speedy messengers sent up the river to the Forest to ask the aid of the King of the Elves of the Wood, and these messengers had found a host already on the move, although it was then only the third day after the fall of Smaug. The Elvenking had received news from his own messengers

They sat down at the last remaining table, which was over by the steamy window. Roger Davies, the Ravenclaw Quidditch Captain, was sitting about a foot and a half away with a pretty blonde girl. They were holding hands. The sight made Harry feel uncomfortable, particularly when, looking around the teashop, he saw that it was full of nothing but couples, all of them holding hands. Perhaps Cho would expect him to hold her hand.
What can I get you, mdears? said Madam Puddifoot, a very stout woman with a shiny black bun, squeezing between their table and Roger Daviess with great difficulty.
Two coffees, please, said Cho.
